

United States Department of Agriculture

Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) is seeking energetic and passionate college students looking to contribute to the health and vitality of America's agriculture and natural resources!

APHIS will advertise internship opportunities on USAJobs for one week starting January 22, 2018, in the following locations: Maryland, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Washington, New Jersey, Louisiana, Texas, Florida, Minnesota, and Washington, D.C.

APHIS will advertise internship opportunities in Arizona, Guam, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii for one week starting February 5.

Positions will be offered in the following fields: biological science, administration, financial management, information technology, environmental protection, and education.

In addition to day-to-day responsibilities, selected students will participate in the Agency's Intern Career Development Program designed to expose them to APHIS' exciting and broad mission and inclusive culture and to develop key technical and leadership skills necessary to be successful APHIS employees.

To learn more about the positions offered and how to apply, please visit

APHIS Intern Career Development Program